

SWEATER SHOULD BE LONG

Of Brilliant Colors and Made of the Softest of Wool Are These Comfortable Garments.

From over the Atlantic sweaters have come for women that are dazzling with their vivid brilliancy of color.

The new imported woolen sweaters are not knitted out of rough, wiry wool or in ribs. The wool used is soft as silk to the touch and the stitch is just the plain knitting stitch. They are for the most part very long, coming well down over the hips.

They seem to have taken their colors from the most vivid sunsets. Yellow, orange, purple, metallic greens abound. A striking orange model has a rolling collar striped with black. A cap and a scarf of the striped orange and black go with the sweater.

A shining purple silk model has a lining of knitted silk in vivid orange in the same stitch and weight as the purple outside. The rolling collar and revers show the orange lining. These double ply sweaters are reversible.

English and French fashionable summer resorts were gay and with these sweaters during the past season. Women seemed to be rivaling one another in sweater brilliancy.

BLACK POPULAR IN PARIS

Distinctive Color Has a Vogue That It Appears Impossible to in Any Way Weaken.

Black satin and chantilly is a favorite combination for visiting dresses when the fur coats are removed. At matinees the black satin dress is very popular.

The skirt is very narrow, opening at the feet, and the tunic is draped about the bust and hips, finishing with four or five narrow flounces in fine black lace. The neck and sleeves are in black or white Malines net, transparent, with a small pleating at the elbows and in the long opening at the bust. A bow of black velvet at the throat is an improvement.

Transparent effects upon the arms are to be seen in bright red tulle, with a dress in the same vivid coloring in brocade satin. One of the big Paris dressmakers is making his new evening dresses with these long wing sleeves in transparent tulle, weighted with glands of beads. Since he has dressed some of the actresses of the leading stages he has slightly changed his severe style. It has been noticed that many smart women are following his ideas of dresses of one color without any relief of black, or white, or flowers.

BEADS HAVE A WIDE VOGUE

All Sorts and Descriptions Are Being Worn With the Various Costumes of the Day.

There is a craze for beads just at present. At one time, and that not long ago, well-dressed women refused to adorn themselves with anything so gaudy and merely glass. Now, however, glass beads are essential, unless one can afford strings upon strings of genuine stones. The glass beads are beautifully cut and can be had in many lovely colors. Strings of them are worn to match the gowns. Composition beads, such as imitation coral in pink, red and white, and beads of smoked amber, are much worn. The latest to be had is beads made of wood.

One can often get better beads and more inexpensive necklaces by buying a quantity of loose beads in the art needlework stores. Very often they have these sample necklaces made up and it is a very simple matter to copy them. If one is original a necklace can, fortunately, be made that will far outshine any of those that can be bought.

GIRL'S PARTY FROCK

More fashionable than lace, for the little girl's party frock now, is very fine, sheer, St. Gall embroidery. Sometimes narrow lace is added to throw the handsome embroidery bandings into relief against the foundation material of sheer batiste or organdie. This little frock is of French organdie and eyeletted St. Gall embroidery. A sash of blue ribbon passes under pointed (bbs) and the thin frock falls over a blue silk slip.

PAT K MARTIN, MAYOR

P. Martin, the first mayor of Monett under commission form of government, came to Monett in the fall of 1887 at the time of the placing of lots in the newly platted town on sale.

He purchased the second lot that was sold, paying $1,500 for the same. The lot is on the corner of Fourth and Broadway and is one of the lots on which his large clothing establishment now stands. He erected the first building in Monett.

Mr. Martin has gradually increased his holdings in the city until today he is the largest individual tax payer in the city. Besides his real estate holdings he is the proprietor of the largest clothing store in the city, which is managed by Pete Martin, his son. He has also two or three fine Barry county farms.

Mr. Martin served on the city council six years and was mayor four years, which service makes him well fitted for the duties of the office to which he has just been called.

Mr. Martin is a staunch democrat and served for two years as chairman of the county committee, eight years as a member of the congressional committee and one term as a member of the state democratic committee.

Mr. Martin is a man of strict integrity and will fulfill the duties of his office fairly and impartially.

JAMES L. BASHAM, COUNCILMAN

James Lee Basham, the newly elected councilman, is a native Missourian and was born on a farm in Maries county, near Vienna, where he grew to early manhood. He received his education in the public schools and in the Richland Institute in Pulaski county.

He is a staunch Democrat, having received his early impressions from his father, a native of Tennessee, who served under General Price in the Civil War.

At the age of 17 years he secured a position as freight brakeman on the Frisco and was in continuous service with the company until in August, 1913. He gradually worked his way upward until he became a passenger conductor in charge of the fast mail and passenger trains between this city and St. Louis.

He is a member of Division No. 151 Order of Railway Conductors and holds the responsible position of secretary-treasurer of the lodge. He was a candidate for the office of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner in 1906 and received a flattering vote at the primary.

This is the first time that he has sought for city office and his many friends feel that he can be trusted to perform the duties of the office to which he is elected with credit to all concerned.

ZINC NEAR MT. VERNON

For several years J. N. Hoshaw, a farmer living six miles west of Mt. Vernon, Mo., has been confident that there is ore on his place. Recently he organized a company to drill the land. In the first hole that was sunk ore was encountered at a depth of 100 feet. For more than forty feet the driller got good specimens of mineral.—Joplin Globe.

Stephen College at Columbia was released from quarantine for smallpox, March 31. Only one student had the disease but the school was isolated a month to prevent any chance of epidemic. The school was guarded by policemen and the young ladies made sport of them by pretending to try to escape. On their release from quarantine the citizens of the town gave them an automobile ride over the city. Miss Buna Ruggles is a student at Stephens.

There were sixteen counties added to the "Dry" list in Illinois Tuesday. Gains made in all parts of the state. Rock Island and Moline went wet.

CITY ELECTION RETURNS

JOHN J. DAVIS, COUNCILMAN

John J. Davis, who has been elected as one of the commissioners of our city, was born in Illinois in 1861. At the age of seven years he moved with his parents to Kansas, where he afterwards became a civil engineer, being employed by the Santa Fe railroad in New Mexico and Old Mexico.

Later he returned to Kansas and with S. A. Chapell engaged in railroad contracting. In 1887 he with Mr. Chapell came to Monett, purchased the lot now occupied by the postoffice building on which they erected a wooden structure.

Later they purchased the hardware stock of Hazeltine & Timberlake and engaged in merchandising. They have now the largest stock of hardware and implements in Barry or Lawrence counties and have been successful in their every effort.

Mr. Davis is a republican and was for years a member of the county central committee, and for two terms was chairman of that body.

In 1896, when President McKinley was nominated, he was assistant sergeant-at-arms in the republican national convention at St. Louis.

In 1904 Mr. Davis was selected as one of the presidential electors from Missouri and in that capacity attended the inauguration of President Roosevelt at Washington in 1905.

Mr. Davis has served on the city council for eight years, four years of that time as president of the board. He was for many years treasurer of the Board of Education.

The affairs of the departments over which he will have control will be in safe and careful hands.

HUMPHREYS' HOME MEDICINE CO., CORNER William and Arch Streets, New York.

If there is any individual glory to come from Tuesday's election and the new form of government, the personal and individual efforts of Mr. Winn S. Taylor cannot be overlooked. While the TIMES claims to have been one of the original supporters of commission form of government, Mr. Taylor has the honor of being the first active worker and the success of the proposition at the polls last February was due largely to his personal work. For two years Mr. Taylor has dreamed of commission form for Monett and he never missed an opportunity to express himself to his friends and others during this time and these sentiments finally took root, resulting in the proposition being put before the voters and culminating in the satisfactory results of yesterday. Monett contemplates with pride the dawn of a new era in municipal affairs and the selection of three of our best business men as the board of commissioners of city affairs. Political strife, personal grievances and strained business relations have been relegated to a past decade and the sun shines upon a more pleasant and satisfactory condition of affairs in Monett today than ever before, due largely to the efforts of Mr. Taylor, at a personal sacrifice consistent with the best characteristics of good citizenship. To each and every citizen who was instrumental in the transformation of government from the old councilmanic form to the new form, Monett owes a vote of thanks and the results of the efforts of the first Commission under the wise dispensation of Mayor Martin and Commissioners Davis and Basham will be satisfactory evidence of the wisdom of the voters at the three elections which have resulted in the change.

Rheumatic Pains Relieved

Why suffer from rheumatism when relief may be had at so small a cost? Mr. Elmer Hatch, Peru, Ind., writes, "I have been subject to attacks of rheumatism for years. Chamberlain's Liniment always relieves me immediately, and I take pleasure in recommending it to others." 25 and 50 cent bottles. For sale by All Dealers.

FREEZING WEATHER

After a day of rain Tuesday the temperature dropped 26 degrees above zero at night and the wet ground was frozen hard, the next morning.

The early gardens, however, show no ill effects. This may be explained by the high wind that blew all night, the cloudy weather and the light of the moon.

Crumley Brothers, the fruit growers, state that they do not think any great damage has been done the fruit crop. The effect on the early strawberries cannot be determined for a day or two.

A Cure for Sour Stomach

Mrs. Wm. M. Thompson, of Battle Creek, Mich., writes: "I have been troubled with indigestion, sour stomach and bad breath. After taking two bottles of Chamberlain's Tablets I am well. These tablets are splendid—none better." For sale by All Dealers.

THE DOG IN THE MANGER

By SUSANNE GLENN.

John Fenton watched grimly while Howard Mayhew's gray team drew up before Betty's gate. He could see the blue glint of Betty's gown as she descended—Betty, whom he was accustomed to seeing dressed like the modest little wood-bird that flitted timidly through the wild-plum thickets.

"That makes the third time this week," muttered John sternly. "I wonder if they think I am going to stand for this sort of thing, with all the neighbors grinning at me like a set of lunatics!" And he strode to the roadside as Mayhew drew near, raising a detaining hand.

"Sorry to trouble you, Mr. Mayhew," he said with forced evenness. "I merely wish to say that this sort of thing has got to stop."

"I should say that is a matter which concerns only Miss Betty and myself," answered Howard Mayhew, without heat.

"Well, it concerns me," said Fenton, shortly.

"I see but one way in which you could enter into the question. Do you mean that there is an engagement between you?"

"See here, Fenton," Mayhew leaned forward, pleasantly in earnest. "I've never wished to take what belongs to another man—if he really has a right to it. But when he flaunts his rights in my face I want to be sure he is not a dog in a manger."

"I don't deny I find Miss Betty's society mighty agreeable, but I should never have dreamed of taking her driving if I had supposed she was engaged to you—and permit me to add that I do not believe she is the woman to go, if she supposed it! An agreement of the kind you intimate can mean nothing but an engagement. Have you asked Betty Martin to marry you?"

"I like your assurance," scoffed John Fenton. "Do you think I'm fool enough to tell you what has passed between Betty and me? All I have to say to you, sir, is that I want you to leave her alone."

"Just a minute," cried Mayhew, quickly. "I have a word to say, also. I refuse to acknowledge any such agreement. No man worthy of the name will hold a girl to an agreement in which he does not commit himself. You are a dog in the manger, that is my answer."

John Fenton stood watching the grays disappear in the twilight, shaken by such anger as had never before touched his self-centered, deliberate existence, an anger which grew with every step he took in the direction of Betty Martin.

Betty sat on her dilapidated front steps contemplating the hand spread out on her blue-clad knee. There was a soft shining and twinkling about it that sent unaccustomed and delightful thrills through Betty's whole being. To think that she could ever have the privilege of accepting or refusing such a ring as that.

She still sat as if spellbound when John Fenton strode in at the gate and up to the steps. "Betty," he cried, seizing the hand with the ring upon it and regarding her sternly, "does this mean that you intend marrying that fellow?"

"I—do not know," faltered Betty. "Well, I know that you are not going to do it! Do you suppose I am going to be set aside in this fashion? Give me the ring and I'll take it back to Howard Mayhew in the morning."

Fire flashed in the gentle eyes of Betty Martin. "No one can decide the question of whom I shall marry, except myself. Howard has asked me to marry him, and I know of no one with the right to interfere. I could not give him a definite answer this evening, and he begged me to keep the ring until I could. I tell you this, in spite of your unwarrantable intrusion, because of our long friendship. And remember this another time, John, a woman knows only what she is told!"

The succeeding 24 hours were bitter to John Fenton. He did not want anyone else to have Betty. "I had the chance and did not know enough to take it. I'm not good enough for her," he groaned aloud. "Betty is not selling herself for worldly possessions; she wants to live; she is tired of waiting. I shall do the fair thing by her once—I'm going to tell her she is doing right."

The fire returned to Betty's eyes when she saw who stood at the door. She wore the blue gown and the ring, on the possibility of Mayhew's appearance, and the indecision which had been torturing her crystallized into firm determination when she beheld Fenton.

"I'll take only a minute of your time, Betty," he announced with amazing humility, after one comprehensive glance at her, "and this is the last word I shall ever have to say about it. 'I've come to take back what I said last night. I had no right to speak as I did. I—I—it is hard for me to say, but I think you cannot do better than to marry Howard Mayhew. And I do not think you are selling yourself.'"

"But you never said I was selling myself," faltered Betty, timidly.

"I said it to myself," declared the man. "I'm not fit to ask your forgiveness. Mayhew was right, I've been nothing but a 'dog in a manger.'"

With a sharp intake of breath, Betty drew the ring from her finger and thrust it into his astonished hand. "Take it back and tell him I shall not marry him."

AN UNUSUAL CHARGE

Miss Sadie Summers has filed an information against J. W. Threet before Judge Wilkerson charging him with throwing a stupefying drug upon her on the night of April 7, on Broadway, with intent to deaden and stupefy her senses with intent to injure or defile.

Threet, who says that his home is in Rogers, Ark., and that he was en route to Wichita, Kan., was placed under arrest. He made a denial of the charge and phoned to for his relatives.

Theater Party.

The Elite Club was entertained, Tuesday evening, by Miss Helen Lehnhard. The young ladies met at the home of Miss Mildred Morrow and were escorted by Miss Lehnhard to the Gem Theater, where they enjoyed the pictures. Some of the latest dances were shown on the screen and when, after the show, they went to the Lehnhard home, they practiced the new steps and otherwise enjoyed themselves.

The evening's amusements had whetted their appetites and they partook heartily of the delicious lunch, served by Miss Lehnhard.

On their return home they serenaded the members of the club who could not attend because of their observance of Lent.

Those in the party were Misses Gladys Price, Margaret Edgar, Cora Lester, Maude and Lucy Gibbons, Blanche Clutter, Erma Dusenbury, Josie Cassidy, Vera Feist, Mildred Morrow and Edna Green.

A daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Winters, Tuesday, April 7.
